

Affordable, innovative and high-quality professional development Level 7
Diploma for teaching practitioners based overseas

Jakob Werdelin

The big challenge

Clearly not everyone in education is qualified to teach or has sufficient/adequate access to high quality and affordable professional development opportunities – this is a major impediment to global recovery, wellbeing, and equality

In a UNESCO Report published in 2018, only 30% of teachers globally reported having any access to PD and of those, 77% declare the training to be of poor quality or little value

International Qualified Teacher Status (iQTS) costs around £10,000 – this is more than the entire annual salary of teachers in the global south – more cost-effective options are critical

A Credible Skills Solution - The British Teaching Diploma (L7)

Delivered by experienced Dragonfly trainers

Online and flexible blended delivery formats available

Two versions of the BTD – academic and vocational emphasis

Proven track record of market success – South America, Jordan, India, Wales and about to access UAE and wider Middle east region

There's not a class that I don't use everything that we've learnt at the BTD, and also, I've kept on studying about cooperative learning and the cognitive load theory by myself.
