

Developing Future-Ready Talent for Green Finance:

SCALABLE PARTNERSHIP MODELS IN VIETNAM

Building a Green Finance Talent Ecosystem in Vietnam:

THREE UK - VIETNAM COLLABORATION MODELS

Embedding Global Professional Standards into University Curriculum

Integrating ICAEW ACA Modules to Enhance Academic Quality and International Employability

10+ leading universities integrating 2–8 ICAEW ACA modules since 2015

Curriculum upgraded with internationally benchmarked professional content

Structured faculty development and teaching support

1,000+ exam sittings annually with ~80% pass rate

Scalable, sustainable, and aligned with international employability

This model is not simply about embedding modules.
It is about strengthening institutional capacity and competitiveness.

Upgraded curriculum aligned with global market expectations

Faculty capacity building through structured professional support

Enhanced graduate employability and international mobility

Stronger institutional brand and industry connectivity

A Tripartite Talent Pipeline Model

Aligning Education,
Professional Standards and Industry

Curriculum integration builds the academic foundation.

But to truly close the skills gap, education must connect directly with industry.

Developing Green Finance talent requires more than knowledge - it requires real-world pathways

I studied one subject of CFAB Program named "Accounting", which was so interesting and rewarding that I could apply in real life. Besides, I had chance to access to ICAEW network and gained a lot of knowledge. After studying hard and passing, I had been one of five students in my school getting summer internship at KPMG. It was one of my most memorable experiences as I could work in a professional environment, performed the job of Audit assistant that I always dreamed for. I would like to say that "If you never try, you will never know. So please take every chance you get in life, because some things only happen once."
